Gen. Sprout to Be Real Guardsman: Will Sleep in Tent Instead of Hotel.

CAMP PETZER MOUNT GRETN. Aug. 19.—The arrival here today of Major General Richard Coulter, commander of the Second Brigade, 10th Cavalry, National Guard, made camp seem more like home to the old timers of the 10th Cavalry. General Coulter was in command of a regiment on the Mexican border at the time of mobilization for the late war but was promoted to brigadier general and placed in command of a western training camp at Fort Huachuca, Arizona. Still later he went overseas and was placed in command of a regiment of the 10th Cavalry. Another distinguished guest is expected tomorrow when Governor William C. Sproul, commander in chief of the Pennsylvania National Guard, will arrive in camp. He has given the men the order to be a real soldier while here and has decided an invitation to make a hotel headquarters. Instead, he intends to sleep in a tent just like the rest of the outfit now in camp. He will make thorough inspection of the camp and will have a review of the time of the 10th Cavalry. General Coulter is in charge of the 10th Cavalry, which is now in camp at Petzer Mount. The boys are real excited out of a 100 inspection of men and equipment of the 10th Cavalry. The inspection is being held at 10 o'clock. Major Paul of the 10th Cavalry conducted the inspection of the 10th Cavalry. The men of the 10th Cavalry are feeling like veterans and are up to the drilling with lots of pep and determination.

NEWSY NOTES TELL WHAT'S HAPPENING IN THE MILL TOWN

John Riley, 81, Dies in Pittsburgh; and Body Is Sent Here.

MISS MARY LOUISE COX WEDS

Local Young Woman Becomes Bride of Charles E. Wilson; Mrs. Hazel Irene Blystone, Tarr, Is Married to Rockwell Cain, Mount Pleasant.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Aug. 10.—The body of John Riley, 81 years old, who died in Pittsburgh, was shipped here yesterday morning and removed by Funeral Director William Ferguson to St. John's church, where services were held.

Cox-Wilson.

Benjamin's Public Sale.
Just a few more days and the greatest sale we have ever held will be a thing of the past. Stocks have been materially reduced, but there are still hundreds of low-priced articles you will be delighted to own. You may never again have the opportunity of buying goods at such sensational reductions—at least not for many months. Our policy of guaranteeing our advertising at 10 to 20 percent and quality has again been proven. Of the enormous crowds attending the sale, not one customer returned her purchase, with the request that her money be returned. There was but one disappointing feature of the sale—the store was so crowded on the opening days that some could not get in. Those who did not come in later may still find their requirements. We wish to number you among the fortunate shoppers. Benjamin's Ladies Store, as you get off the car.—Adv.

Twice Proven

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Connellsville evidence—doubly proven.

Lydia E. Lowe, 819 10th St., gave the following statement March 16, 1914: "I was bothered with sharp pains in my back for about two years. I felt weak and tired when I got up mornings, too. I tried different remedies as well as consulting my doctor but I didn't seem to get any better. I saw in the local paper where many people had used Doan's Kidney Pills and been cured, so I got a box from Clarke's Drug Store. I got a great deal of relief from the first box and I kept on taking them until I found I was entirely rid of the trouble."

On Aug. 9, 1919, Lydia Lowe said: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me several years ago and the cure has lasted to this day. I believe highly in Doan's and I am pleased to renew my former endorsement."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Lydia Lowe had. Foster-McIlburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

COAL STRIPPING.

To Be Employed by the H. C. Frick Coke Co. in Kentucky District. Stripping of coal in the outcrop sections of the mines at Ronce and Lockport plants has been commenced by the H. C. Frick Coke company. It is the first attempt of the company to obtain coal by that method.

A steam shovel with a capacity of 100 cubic yards is being used. As soon as the coal is uncovered a small shovel will load the coal on mine cars. It will be hauled to Gates and shipped by river.

Britain to Enhance Coal Mines. Operators are planning to increase the output of British coal mines by 40,000,000 tons a year.

Hunting Bargains? Read our advertising columns and you will find them.

Back to 1900 Government. A chief executive, a national business manager, is needed who understands the fundamentals of our problems and who has the purpose and the courage to deal with them in the American way of sense and action. I say this because they will be ignored—in favor of the man equipped with an adequate measure of self-suppression and earnestly eager and able to get this country down to business. The Republican party will supply one.

At the Theatres

THE SEISSON.

"DOLLARS AND SENSE"—Madge Kennedy's latest Goldwyn vehicle is today a feature attraction.

The story centers around an American girl's struggle for an existence. One of her chorus girl friends endeavors to persuade Hazel to follow her example and take the easiest way but Hazel refuses and with her last two cents enters a baker's shop to purchase a couple of stale buns for dinner. The young man behind the counter regards her curiously and does not believe her excuse that the buns are for her Pomeranian. Later Hazel returns and witnesses the baker's generosity. He gives away his bread to those who cannot afford to buy it, and those who can be undercharged. His generous acts inspire the girl and it is not long until she is imbued with his ideas—to alleviate the sufferings of the poor. They join forces and after a little while outline a plan for the accomplishment of their purpose. How the story develops and ends may be seen at this theatre today and tomorrow.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE MESSAGE OF THE MOUSE"

With Anita Stewart supported by Julia Swayne Gordon, L. Rogers Lytton, Robert Guilford and other well-known stars in interesting roles is being shown today.

The story is a startling revelation of the splendid work the United States Secret Service is doing in running down those who would work against the country's welfare. Hallam Varrie the mastermind of a subtle plot that sought this country's undoing through the merchant marine had established a spy system whose tentacles reached into the very soul of our government. But between his love of a patriotic American girl and the watchfulness of the secret service his plans went awry.

The girl on the other hand not only fought against his unrequited love but put her frail form between him and the wrong he would have done her country. The Message and other Mouse is a dramatic romance of international intrigue presenting Anita Stewart in the leading role.

Ohiopyle.

Miss Mary Burnworth who has spent the past several months at Brackentide has returned to her home here.

"I know a man who is continually taking high money and never getting into trouble about it."

Hardly Flattering

She—I appreciate the compliment, but I'm afraid I could never make you happy.

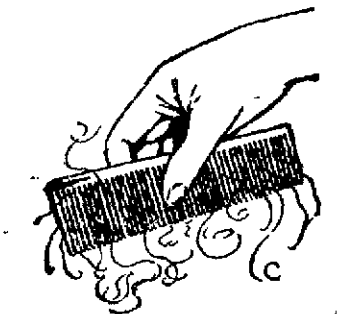

He—Oh yes you could. You don't know how much I'm pleased I am.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1883 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to the directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place a well man."—Adv.

Prices — Up or Down!

High prices for livestock increase the producer's income. Low prices decrease it and even result in losses. Similarly, high prices for meat increase consumer's expenses.

But Swift & Company as a middleman does not benefit by high or low prices. Our income depends not on a high level of prices or a low level, but rather on the margin between the livestock price and the meat and by-products price.

The company's only concern, in whether prices should be high or low, is that they should be high enough to satisfy producers and low enough to please consumers; but over the movement of these prices Swift & Company has no control.

Swift & Company is compelled by competition to pay high enough prices for livestock to secure an adequate supply. We must sell meat at a price low enough to make it move. We endeavor also, between the two prices, to secure a margin large enough to pay all expenses and yield a fair profit.

Our profit for 1919 averaged less than two cents on each dollar of sales, or 6% per cent on money invested.

WEBSTER —MAN'S MAN—

Peter B. Kyne

Author of "Cappy
Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

CHAPTER I.

When John Stuart Webster, mining engineer and kick-up-of-dust on distant trails, flagged the S. P., L. A. & S. L. Limited at a blistered board station in Death Valley, California, he had definitely resolved to do certain things. To begin, he would invade the dining car at the first call to dinner and order approximately twenty dollars' worth of ham and eggs, which, he was sure, would be served with a flourish, the pinnacle of epicurean delight to an old sour-dough coming out of the wilderness with a healthy bank-roll and a healthier appetite.

Following the ham and eggs, Mr. Webster planned to saturate himself from soul to vermiform appendix with nicotine, which he purposed obtaining from tobacco with nicotine in it. It was a week since he had smoked anything with an odor even remotely like tobacco, for the August temperature in Death Valley is no respecter of moisture in any man or his tobacco. Upon arrival at Salt Lake City his spree would really begin. Webster designed chartering a taxicab, and proceeding forthwith to a hotel where he would engage a sunny room with a bath, fill the bathtub, climb blithely in and soak for two hours at least, for it was nearly eight months since he had had a regular bath and he purposed making the most of his opportunity. His long-drawn abdomen, as long as a subway for forty-eight hours, merely waiting long enough to take another bath, order up periodical consignments of ham and eggs, and incidentally, make certain that a friendly side-winder or chuck-wagon hadn't crawled under the blanket with him.

So much for John Stuart Webster's plans. Now for the gentleman himself. No one—not even the Pullman porter, showed signs of mankind that he was—could have discerned in the chrysalis that hugged the Limited the butterfly of fashion that was to be. As the ebony George raised the vestibule platform, opened the car door and looked out, he could see the lean, sun-baked big man standing by the train. Plainly the fellow was not a first-class passenger but a wandering prospector, for he was dog-dirty, a ruin of eggs and hairy as a tarantula. The only clean thing about him was a heavy-calibered automatic pistol of the army type, swinging at his hip.

"Day coach" and "tourist" up in front, the knight of the whisker announced in disapproving tones and started to close down the platform. "So I perceived," John Stuart Webster replied blithely. "I also observed that you failed to employ the title 'sir' when addressing a white man. For that platform back and here with your little stool, you saddle-colored son of a Spaniard, or I'll make you a hard porter to catch."

"Yassah, yassah!" the porter spluttered, and obeyed instantly. Mr. Webster handed him a disreputable-looking suitcase and stepped aboard in state, only to be informed that there wasn't a vacant berth in the day coach.

"Yes, I know I'm dirty," the fat arrival announced cheerfully, "but still, as Bobby Burns once remarked, 'a man's a man for a' that'—and I'm not unsanitary."

"I'm very sorry," the conductor replied pertly and endeavored to pass on, but Webster secured a firm grip on his lapel and frustrated the escape.

"You're not sorry," the ragged wanderer declared, "not one little bit. You're only apprehensive. However, you needn't be. There is no wild life on me, brother, I assure you."

"But I tell you, the train is full up. You'll have to roost in the day coach or the tourist, I'm very sorry."

"Nevertheless, despite your dog-dirty, something-tells me you're sporting, so while I must, of necessity, accept your suggestion, said acceptance will be but temporary. In about two hours, young fellow, you're going to make the alarming discovery that you have bats in your belfry. And with a whiskery grin which, under the circumstances, was charming in its absolute freedom from malice, Mr. Webster departed for the day coach.

Two hours later the conductor found him in the aforementioned day coach, engaged in a mild game of poker with a mule-skinner, a Chinaman, an aged prospector, and a half-breed Indian, and waited until Mr. Webster, on a bob-tailed mule, bluffed the Chinaman out of a dollar-and-a-half pot.

"Are you Mr. John S. Webster?" "Your assumption that I am that person is so eminently correct that it would be a waste of time for me to dispute it," Webster replied quizzically. "However, just to prove that you're not the only clairvoyant on this train, I'm going to tell you something about yourself. In your pocket you have a telegram: it is from Chicago, where your pay-check originates; it's short, sweet and comprehensive, containing an order which you are going to obey. It reads somewhat as follows: 'My friend, John S. Webster, wires me from Blank that he boarded train at Blank and was refused first-class accommodation because he looked like a hobo. Give him the best you have in stock. If you have to throw somebody off the train to accommodate him,' signed, 'Sweeney.'"

"Do I hit the target?" The conductor nodded. "You win, Mr. Webster," he admitted. "Occasionally I lose, old timer, well?"

"No offense, Mr. Webster, no offense. I can let you have a stateroom—"

"That's trading talk. I'll take it!"

The conductor gave him his receipt and led him back to the stateroom in the observation car. At the door Webster handed him a five-dollar bill. "For you, son," he said gently, "just to take the sting out of what I'm about to tell you. Now that I possess your receipt and know that ten men and a boy cannot take it away from me, I'm going to tell you who Sweeney is."

"Who is he?" the conductor queried. Already he suspected he had been out-generaled.

"Sweeney," said Mr. Webster, "is the chief clerk in one of Chicago's most pretentious hotels and a young man who can find all the tangles of a situation without working it out in logarithms. I wired him the details of my predicament; he learned the Macedonian cry and kicked in. 'Now, is it not?'"

"The conductor grinned. 'I hate to take your money,' he declared. 'Don't. Just at present I'm very flush. Yes, sir, I'm as prosperous as a yearling burro up to his ears in alfalfa and the only use I have ever found for money is to make other people happy with it, thereby getting some enjoyment out of it myself. When you broke I'll make some more.'"

And Mr. Webster retired to his hard-won sanctuary, where he removed as much alkali and perspiration as he could, carded his long hair and whiskers, manicured his finger-nails with a jack-knife, changed his shirt, provided five minutes of industry for George with his whiskbroom and brush, and set himself patiently to await the first call to dinner.

Presently a pink-jowled, well-carried, freshly dressed big man, of about Webster's age, passed in the corridor, going toward the head of the train. An instant later a woman's voice said very distinctly:

"I do not know you, sir; I do not wish to know you, and it is lousier of you to persist in addressing me. If you do not stop your annoying attentions, I shall call the conductor."

"Ah! Beauty in distress," John Stuart Webster soliloquized. "I look so much like an Angora goat I might as well butt in." He stepped to the door of his stateroom. A girl stood in the vestibule, confronting the man who had just passed Webster's door. Webster bowed.

"Madame, or mademoiselle, as the case may be," he said, "unlike this other male bled, my sole purpose in presuming to address you is to suggest that there is not the slightest necessity for taking this matter up with the conductor. I am here and very much at your service."

The girl turned—and John Stuart Webster's heart stopped twice in rapid succession, like a trout newly gassed. She was as lovely, as a royal flush. Her stony glance began at his silver's boots, traveled up his old soiled, whiskered nose, over his light blue-clay-bray shirt and found the man behind the whiskers. She favored him with a quick, curious scrutiny and a grave, sweet smile. "Thank you so much, sir," she answered, and passed down the corridor to the observation car.

"Well, old-timer," Webster greeted the fellow who had been annoying her, "how about you? What do you think we ought to do about this little affair?"

"The sensible thing would be to do nothing. You might start something you couldn't finish."

"That's a dare," Webster declared brightly, "and wasn't it the immortal Buckleberry Finn who remarked that anybody that'd take a dare would suck eggs and sing sheep?" He was silent a few seconds, appraising his man. "I suppose you commenced operations by moving into her section and asking if she would like to have the window open and enjoy the fresh air. She rebuffed you, but being a persistent devil, you followed her into the observation car, and in all probability you ogled her at luncheon and ruined her appetite. And just now, when you met her in this vestibule, you doubtless loomed before her, begged her pardon, and without waiting to be introduced, asked her to have dinner with you this evening."

"Well?" the fellow echoed belligerently.

"It's all bad form. You shouldn't try to make a dash on a lady. I don't know who she is, of course, but she's not common and for the sake of the mother that bore me I always respect and protect a good woman and while I'm out of those that do not."

He reached inside his stateroom and pressed the bell. The porter arrived on the run.

"George," said Mr. Webster, "in a few minutes we're due at Smithville. If my memory serves me right, we stop five minutes for water and orders."

"Remain right here and let me off as soon as the train comes to a stop. When the train slid to a grinding halt and the porter opened the car door, Webster pointed. "Out," he said. "This is no nice place to pull off a scrap."

ervation car, whether the subject of his annoying attention had gone. Two steps brought him within striking distance of his enemy, and before Webster could dodge, a sizzling right-handed blow landed on his jaw and set him back on his haunches in the vestibule.

It was almost a knockout—almost, but not quite. As Webster's body struck the floor the big automatic came out of the holster, swinging in a weak circle, it soared the other.

"That was a daisy," Webster mumbled. "If you move before my head clears, I'll put four bullets into you before you reach the corridor."

He waited about a minute, then with the gun he pointed to the car door and the masher stepped out. Webster handed the porter his gun and followed; two minutes later he returned, dragging his assailant by the collar. Up the steps he jerked the big buttered hulk and tossed it in the corner of the vestibule, just as the train came through the car, making for the dinner up ahead.

Again she favored him with that calm, grave, yet vitally interested gaze, maddeningly made as if to pass on, changed her mind, and said:

"You Are a Very Courteous Gentleman," very gravely. "You are—a very courteous gentleman, sir."
